A WARSHIP MUSTER.

AN IMPORTANT CEREMONY ON BOARD OF A BIG MAN-OF-WAR.

Once a Month Every Man on Board Ship Must Look His Very Best, and at the End All Hands Forward Follow an Old Custom and Go Around the Mast.

General muster is a ceremony of great importance on a man-of-war. Unlike other musters and routine drills which take place day after day with the utmost regularity, this grand function takes place not oftener than once a month. On most warships the first Sunday of each month is reserved for this purpose, but it often Program changed daily on the Edison phonographs at the display pariors, 117 East Douglas. All are invited. d50 tf happens that two or three months elapse between general musters.

DINNER TABLE TRICKS.

Suggestions for Entertainment That May Make You Unpopular.

A great deal of amusement can be furnished a dinner party by tricks performed with toothpicks, goblets and other bric-abrac of the festive board. Nothing is more enlivening when the guests are discussing the dessert than a well selected series of tricks, and nothing will make a person remembered longer by his associates. An amusing trick is one with water glasses. Fince three or four in a row then another row on top of these contain ing a number one less than the first; the another row and so on until a pyramid with a single glass on top is formed. Now the whole pyramid c. This denouement never fails to pr ac much merriment. It may also prove to the host and hostess, but as you will never be invited there to another dinner what do you care?

Hardly have the men broken ranks when the boatswain's mates' whistles are heard, followed by the gruff voices of the old seasons and the station of the comparative merits of the Panama and Nicaragua canal routes, and, taking your fork, push aside your plate and with the fork sets draw a diagram showing your understanding of the courses taken. Of course your friend will then make corrections, and if both press rather heavily on the fork handles interest ing outlines can be made, their accuracdepending on your respective artistic abili-ties. If the forks have been dipped in gravy or mushed potatoes before the dray ing commences the outlines will be plainer Indeed they are frequently so vivid as to be seen the whole length of the table, and thus amuse all the guests. Toothpicks are a unique source of amusement, and many recipes are given for itself. For centuries we have been tryting forth the punishments to be given fifty or 100 picks and build a log house doing tricks with them. One is to take structure with four sides, each the length of a toothpick. When it has been put up say ten or twelve inches high, set a glass of water on top, and with a match set fire to the wooden tower. As the toothpicks burn the water will fall and be spilled over the flames, thus extinguishing them and creating considerable wonder among those present that the whole building was not burned up.

It is often the case that there is a constraint during the first course that emjoyment of the meal until it has worn off. some enlivening trick can be performed by an ingenious guest the true bonhom-nie of the feast can quickly be brought about. For this purpose the soup plate trick is a good one. Having bribed a waiter to let you see the bottom of a plate before the meal, offer to bet a small sum, like five then come yeomen, writers, machinists, sign of the maker's trade mark on the bot or ten dollars, that you can guess the de tom of the plates. Request all to imitate your motions and slowly lift the sou, and plate from the table until it is on a leve with the top of your head. Watching your own plate quickly ery "Fire!" when about half the guests will probably drop their plates and be too confused to dispute your winning the bet.
